Not illustrated. 1858 Excerpt: .The horses ate all the hay, which the coachman gave them. The cat sat on the carpet behind the curtain. This boy promised to become a very clever man, because he gave such clever answers already in his earliest childhood. That lady gives her servants every New year s-day a very handsome present. He liked bread better than cake, and water better than wine or beer. Have you been sitting long on the shore? It seemed to me, to be getting (become) cold; we therefore walked faster, and have beeng sitting only a short time, in order to rest. Who is tallest, speaks best and helps most willingly? Frederick has eaten most, for he was most hungry. The officer promised his dying friend, to give his son a good education. We always read (Imp.) with pleasure useful books, but it is very natural, that we also liked to read an entertaining one sometimes. Of whom were you talking (speaking) so loudly this forenoon? You forgot, that somebody was sitting behind the arbour, and could hear every word, (which) you said. We could not come sooner. Our cousins ate sea-fish every day, as long as they lived by (at) the coast. He often speaks of it, because he often sees it. Who has helped you with (6et) your exercise? No one, I have done it all (quite) alone. A polite boy always takes off his cap, when he is speaking to older people. Many persons have died,...
