Stenography Class. Divided into twelve sets. System adopted, Graham s. The graduation exercise is at 120 words per minute, continuous dictation, current business matter. Further opportunity for perfection is afforded to graduates of the class: they are selected as amanuenses to the various heads of departments in their daily clerical labors, and are moreover, in the capacity of assistant-instructors, intrusted with the coaching of beginners. There are some six or eight paroled men, graduates of the class, presently engaged as stenographers in open life. During the past year nine prisoners found employment of this nature. Many members of the stenography class have become expert shorthand-writers, and some of those liberated were enabled to make for themselves, by means of the knowledge here acquired, comparatively brilliant positions in the industrial world. Typewriting Class. It is intimately connected with the class in stenography, its members as a general rule belonging also to the other department. Remington machines 1 and 2 are the typewriters employed. There are five in all. Instruction is furnished conjointly with stenographic work; thus, beginning with a...
